

DOYLESTOWN MARKS CENTENNIAL WEEK WITH BIG PROGRAM

Trombone Quartet Calls The Inhabitants to Begin The Program of The Day

3,000 AT COURT HOUSE

Franklin Spencer Edmonds,
Phila., Principal Speaker At Exercises Last Night

DOYLESTOWN, May 31—The opening of a week-long celebration marking the 100th anniversary of the founding of this borough, got under way yesterday with a 16-hour program.

Promptly at 6 a. m. a trombone quartet gave a reveille serenade from the court house tower. The chimes rang at 7 a. m., and at 8 o'clock three town criers with bells summoned the community to celebrate in the style of a century ago.

More than 1000 school children participated in flag-raising exercises at the Doylestown school and then marched in the annual children's Memorial Day parade to strew flowers on veterans' graves.

The American Legion held memorial rites at the 104th Regiment Monument in Monument Square at 10.45 a. m., after a reception to the borough's thousands of guests in Courthouse Park.

A centennial oak was planted in the park by the Doylestown Nature Club, with Mrs. H. J. Shoemaker presiding.

National Guardsmen and members of patriotic organizations marched in a military parade at 3 p. m. The column included the first battalion, 111th Infantry, with companies from Pottstown, Phoenixville, Norristown and Doylestown; the Lansdale First Aid Corps, Bucks County Rural School Nurses, American Legion Posts of Doylestown, Fort Washington and Conshohocken; North Penn Post No. 676, V. F. W., Glenside; Wyndmoor Drum and Bugle Corps and a group wearing uniforms of all American wars. Colonel Roger O. Mason, Doylestown, was chief marshal.

Members of Borough Council, wearing stovepipe hats and suits that were stylish in 1838, drove up in a tally-ho for the celebration.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer presided at the centennial meeting of 3,000 persons in the courthouse last night. Franklin Spencer Edmonds, Philadelphia attorney, was the principal speaker. Leigh Mitchell Hodges, Philadelphia newspaper man, who lives in Doylestown, read a Doylestown centennial ode which he composed.

Miss Florence Vodarski Is Wed in Riverside

A wedding was solemnized Sunday at two p. m. in St. Casimir's Catholic Church, Riverside, N. J., when Miss Florence C. Vodarski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Vodarski, 272 Hayes street, became the bride of Benjamin H. Wilenski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wilenski, Riverside, N. J. The bride party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March. The choir sang "The Rosary" and "I Love You Truly."

The maid of honor was Miss Virginia Vodarski, sister of the bride; and bridesmaids were Miss Katharine Kryven, 276 Hayes street, and Miss Helen Lubowicki, Trenton, N. J. Serving as best man was Walter Urban, Philadelphia, and the usher was William Sobon, Philadelphia.

The bride was gowned in white chiffon over satin, featuring round neckline trimmed with chiffon rose-buds and orange blossoms. The front of the bodice was shirred. The long sleeves were puffed to the elbow, and the long, full skirt ended with a train. She wore white satin sandals, a tulle veil with a crown of lilies-of-the-valley, and carried a white prayer book with white satin streamers and lilies-of-the-valley.

The maid of honor wore a chiffon gown of peacock blue. It was fashioned with shirred bodice. The neckline was finished with peach tone rose-buds, and sleeves were short and puffed. The long skirt had a short train. Peach tone satin sandals, a halo of flowers and shoulder-length tulle veil completed the costume, and she carried tallismans roses. Miss Kryven and Miss Lubowicki were attired in chiffon gowns made like that of the maid of honor, but different in color. They wore peach chiffon over satin of the same tone, with aqua accessories, and carried tallismans roses.

A reception was held in Sons of Italy Hall, Wood street, 200 guests attending. The couple left Sunday evening for a trip to New York and Canada for one week. They will reside for a while at the home of the bride.

WORKING MODEL, FITCH'S BOAT, TO BE DISPLAYED

One of Salient Points of Interest
During Doylestown
Centennial

SHOWN ON JUNE 2 AND 3

DOYLESTOWN, May 31—One of the salient points of interest during Doylestown Centennial Week will be a display on Thursday and Friday, June 2 and 3, of the first successful steamboat that was designed and made by John Fitch, early Revolutionary inventor. This will be a working model designed for production to be manufactured by the Museum Extension Project of Bucks county.

This great Bucks county inventor, whose "brain-child" was stolen from him, is now, largely through the efforts of county-spirited people, rapidly being credited with the honors he so richly deserved. A tablet on Old York Road, Warminster Township, marks the spot where the inventor conceived his idea that was to bring continents closer together.

These models were made at the suggestions of J. Harry Hoffman, Bucks County Superintendent of Schools and sponsor of this branch of the County Project.

In the field of art, Bucks County, through its New Hope art colony, is known throughout the world. Artists and sculptors will be at the exhibit giving demonstrations of their work, showing the public how historical costume plates, early settlers' maps, fish plaques cast from real fish, Indian Dioramas (three-dimensional), architectural models, puppets and period furniture are being made for use in public schools and State institutions, giving students a conception of the great history of Bucks county and Pennsylvania.

The origin of this work, executed by W. P. A. administration workers, that is so rapidly spreading throughout the country and has been accepted as being the most useful of all of the unemployment relief projects, again had its source in Doylestown, as Mrs. Martha C. Colt, state supervisor of this project had worked and lived most of her life in Doylestown, being an artist, sculptor and teacher herself, and realizing that the decline of the national income from 1929 to 1932 that the field hit the hardest in an economic sense was that of education.

For a time it appeared that the curriculums would be limited to the three "R's" for thousands of schools were forced to close, teachers thrown out of work and schools and museums were unable to purchase much-needed educational material.

The value of the project is two-fold. Besides supplying objects of visual education, it gives employment to many who sorely need jobs. A large staff of workers, skilled and unskilled, is employed in the diverse tasks of research, drawing, painting, casting, sewing and woodworking. Among them are young men and women who, coming of age during the depression, never had a job, mature workers lifted from their uncomfortable status as "relief" recipients. Their rehabilitation has been constant since their removal from the home relief rolls.

The work on the project enabled the employees to learn and improve skill for an increasingly critical labor market. People who have visited the project—historians and artists among them—have been lavish in their praise of these industrious men and women.

In conjunction with the exhibit are early photographs of Doylestown which are artistically presented by the project. These are owned by Fred Martin, Doylestown architect, who has been largely responsible for bringing the project to Doylestown next week.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Although the rain during the past week has retarded work on the farms, especially the planting of potatoes and corn, it has been a great help to the farmers.

Commenting on the farming conditions in general, Assistant County Farm Agent William Wilson, Doylestown, said that due to the lack of rain this Spring, the soil became very dry, and the rain this week is very beneficial.

The rain, it was said by Mr. Wilson, will be especially beneficial to the pastures, grasses and grains, all of which had been suffering because of a lack of moisture. Corn which was planted earlier in the season will also be benefited.

Mr. Wilson pointed out, however, that the rain would be much more beneficial if the weather were warmer.

Most of the potatoes have been planted and during the fore part of the week, farmers in the county were busy with the planting of corn. If weather conditions permit, it is believed most of the corn planting will be completed next week.

"Recent instances of poaching on private fish preserves in the vicinity of Doylestown were revealed by Game Warden Harry Z. Cole, of Norristown. He mentioned one case in the Pebble Hill section where fish thieves visited a large pond on three successive nights this week, partly demolished a masonry dam to drain off the waters and net the fish.

Warden Cole pointed out that such vandalism was a much more serious offense than mere poaching as the culprits can be prosecuted under criminal charges for which there are heavy penalties. He also said that several persons were under suspicion in this particular case as they left definite evidence of their identity on the scene.

PRIZE-WINNING ESSAY WRITTEN BY GIRL PUPIL

Paper On "The Need of An Adequate National Defense"
Won Medal

IS HERE PUBLISHED

"The Need Of An Adequate National Defense" was the subject assigned to eighth grade pupils of Bristol Township public schools, when Joseph A. Schumacher Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, conducted an essay contest.

The winner of the contest, Miss Stella Frances Klemczak, received a medal for her efforts, on the night of commencement exercises, Thursday. The essay follows:

The United States as one of the wealthiest and most powerful countries in the world may be considered by other countries as a chance to increase their wealth. Such countries as Germany, Italy and Japan may want this country under their rule. National defense is a loose term which may apply to any part of the world where United States government either rightly or wrongly claims its citizens, are now being allowed to enjoy their rights or live in safety.

One of our best defenses is the Navy. The main job of the Navy is to defend its coast line on the Pacific. It is up to the Navy to keep any enemy as far away from our coasts as possible. That is where our outlying possessions come in. The United States owns or controls Alaska, Hawaiian Islands, Guam, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and the Philippines until 1946. It is our job to protect them. Huge vessels are necessary for a defense because the American Navy is now inferior to the Japanese in most naval divisions. The combined navies of Japan, Italy and Germany which are bound together in an anti-communist pact are greater than that of the United States.

When we have an adequate defense it would mean that it must be equal to the combined strength of Italy, Germany and Japan.

In South America, German, Japanese and Italian penetration and propaganda continue. The people of South America are beginning to favor these countries. If the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis extended to the western world, and if the Fascist dictatorships were to win a firm economic and political foothold in this hemisphere the United States would be faced with an immediate menace to its peace and therefore must be ready to act. Yet we must protect South American countries and thus stand by the Monroe Doctrine.

In the Pacific Ocean, Japan has its problem of population and its desire for territory. This would be an easy means of trouble for us. The Alaskan fisheries are here and they need our utmost attention.

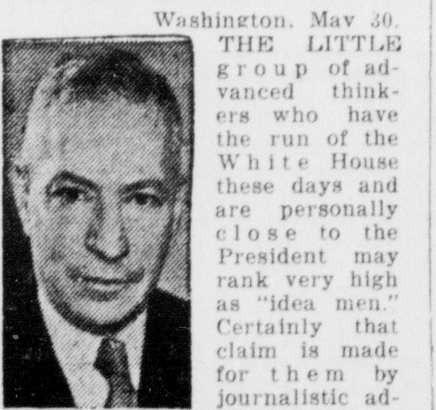

There is the difference of races and nationality in the United States. These

The Idea Men Get Another

Washington, May 30. THE LITTLE group of advanced thinkers who have the run of the White House these days and are personally close to the President may rank very high as "idea men."

Certainly that claim is made for them by journalistic admirers, though there are those who contend that the ideas are more prolific than profound, that most of them have three thumbs or twelve toes, or are otherwise abnormal, unnatural and bizarre.

The skirts were long and full, ending in a short train in the back. The attendants wore pointed, peach-colored, plaited brads, with shoulder length veils, and sandals to match. Ten Injured in Two Auto Crashes During Night

Ten people were injured in automobile accidents during the night, both crashes occurring on main highways, each involving but one car.

At 11 p. m., on the old Lincoln Highway, three miles west of Morrisville, a sedan operated by Lewis Angliama, 38, of 2733 Stineway street, Astoria, L. I., was forced off the road. It is claimed, when the driver became "blinded" by bright lights. The car struck a head-wall, the machine being damaged to the extent of $150. The right side of the machine was demolished, according to report of Private Nighan, of Oxford Valley barracks, Pennsylvania Motor Police.

Angliama was treated at Byberry Hospital for lacerations of the right hand, slight laceration of the right cheek, deep laceration of the right index finger. Mrs. Anna Angliama, the driver's wife, had laceration of the upper lip; and another passenger, John Pasquelli, had contusions of the scalp. The party was en route from Philadelphia to New York when the crash occurred.

Shortly after midnight, a car crashed into a pole near Parkland, seven being hurt.

The report of officer Nighan, who investigated, showed that the car owned by Aaron Shrager, of 55 Barrett street, Brooklyn, N. Y., was driven by Hyman Cohen, of the same address.

Warner G. Gudenberg, 2007
Wilson Ave., Said To Have Slipped Out of Country

HIS WIFE IS PERPLEXED

"I Still Have Faith in Him and Do Not Believe He Has Done
Anything Wrong," She Says

Bristol residents were set agog Saturday evening when radio news broadcasts and late editions of the Philadelphia afternoon papers carried stories to the effect that a Bristol resident wanted by the Department of Justice had slipped out of the country.

Reported on the high seas today bound for Germany, Warner G. Gudenberg, 2007 Wilson avenue, is reported headed into what may become one of those situations described as an "international incident."

Gudenberg is called the "man of mystery" in the Department of Justice spy ring probe.

The Department of Justice has asked the French police to take Gudenberg into custody when the North German Lloyd liner Hamburg touches at Cherbourg, but if the precedent established in the case of Dr. Ignatz T. Griebel is followed, the police will not get Gudenberg and the Justice Department will be even more annoyed than it is at present.

Gudenberg was reported to have stowed away on the Hamburg and the co-operation of the French police has been asked by the United States government.

It is reported that Gudenberg is regarded as even a more important witness in the current spy probe than Griebel. Just what his supposed role was in the operation of the spy ring has not been entirely disclosed.

U. S. Attorney Lamar Hardy has said this much: "Gudenberg was brought before the Federal Grand Jury in connection with the espionage case against Guenther Gustav Rumrich, foreign-born U. S. Army recruit, on two occasions.

"He was held available as witness against Rumrich and two alleged confederates during trial."

Hardy also revealed that he had gone to Washington to report on progress of the spy probe and that it was during his brief absence from the city that Gudenberg slipped away.

"Gudenberg slipped aboard the outgoing liner Hamburg, just as Dr. Ignatz T. Griebel, another German-born witness, was spirited out of the country aboard the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, a month ago," Hardy asserted.

When Gudenberg left, bulky reports concerning army and navy aviation secrets were reported to have gone with him, but Hardy and the G-Men engaged in ferreting out claimed spies were silent as to exactly what they had on him.

Gudenberg was under surveillance for many months before he was picked up and questioned by government agents. Twice he was brought before the grand jury and he was scheduled for another appearance.

Allowed his liberty in the meantime, he was supposed to be under constant watch of the government agents, but he appeared to have had no trouble eluding them and boarding the Hamburg.

If the French police are permitted to take him from the liner at Cherbourg, he will be returned immediately to the United States. If they are not, as in the Griebel case, it is expected that representations will be made to the German government through the State Department.

Gudenberg has resided in Bristol between six and seven years. He married Miss Veronica Karp and the couple reside at 2007 Wilson avenue. In December Mr. and Mrs. Gudenberg and their son, 4, went to Germany to visit Mr. Gudenberg's parents who reside in Hamburg. He returned to Bristol in March.

Today Mrs. Gudenberg has sought asylum at the home of her brother, adjoining her own residence. "I just couldn't stay there alone," she said today as she sat upon the davenport at her brother's home. Her son munching an apple and gleefully prattling about, slid off and on the davenport as his mother discussed the situation in which she finds herself today.

"I haven't lost faith in him," she said. "I can't believe that he has done anything wrong. He had such a fine character and was so devoted to his little son, here. He may not even be on the boat; he may still be somewhere in New York. Of course he did wrong in going away in the manner in which he did but he might have been frightened. I don't know."

HIGHWAY CAVALIERS

It has been reiterated frequently in these columns that much traffic trouble could be avoided by simple courtesy, that the common practice of politeness extended to the driving of automobiles on the highway would remove most of the danger of motoring. The road hog and the speed monkey are persons who may be likeable in their own homes or in yours, in clubs and on the golf links, on the sidewalk and in cafes, but once they sit behind steering wheels they forget their manners.

Realizing the strange transformation of a regular fellow into a potential instrument of death, the English police have evolved a Courtesy Squad of 800 men, trained, equipped and maintained by a government fund of $2,500,000 for the purpose of teaching manners to drivers in the hope that such education will cut down the toll of death on the road. The plan is the result of a sharp change of technique in the handling of the traffic problems, a scheme of prevention, designed to keep erring road users out of the courts and hospitals, and to convert speedsters, corner-cutters, jaywalkers and other violators of traffic rules into considerate and careful citizens. The "courtesy cops" advise offenders of the highway code, instruct those who wish to be instructed, set an example of careful driving, check the impatience of drivers and hand out violators a Scotland Yard ticket which means "Don't do it again," but which says it politely in this wise:

"You have just had your attention drawn to conduct which might have proved dangerous either to yourself or to other people on the road. Casualties arising from similar incidents are taking place in large numbers on the roads every day. The police are doing all they can to reduce these accidents, but safety primarily depends on each individual road user."

The plan is an experiment, the sponsors hope for the best and rely on the decency and fairness of their fellow citizens. Road mishap statistics will tell the story of the success or failure of the highway cavaliers.

FORGET IT

Out of Washington comes an announcement that the proposal to create a powerful Government radio station to blast propaganda over South America is shelved "for this session."

It should be abandoned for all time!

The good neighbor policy toward South American peoples has general approval in the United States. To have our opinions to other nations is no neighborly; it is impertinence!

The neighbors would be quite within their rights to ask us how we are handling our domestic problems and we might be embarrassed. We have enough to do to straighten out our own tangles without mixing in the affairs of other nations.

Slip word to your Congressman, when he comes home for vacation, that this Government radio proposition must be squelched.

We can remember when "billion" would have been regarded as a misprint for a clear soup.

Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts upbraided President Roosevelt for "indirectly approving" Italian seizure of Ethiopia. The same Mr. Tinkham who a couple of years ago directly approved Italian seizure of Ethiopia.

Weekly Letter to Home-Makers

A Letter Written by Miss Edna M. Ferguson to Home-Makers will appear in each Tuesday's issue of The Bristol Courier. Through this medium Miss Ferguson will give many helpful hints to home-makers.

Dear Friends:

Oh, what is so rare as a picnic in May, until we greet Decoration Day! Poems and picnics are in the air, the Winter of our discontent is past and erratic Spring weather has settled down—we hope. It is high time to line up fresh ideas for outdoor fun.

Pack up your troubles in your picnic basket and let the packing be as effortless as possible, if you would enjoy the outing.

One of the most important factors for success is a regular picnic kit, which is systematically kept together, ready for prompt use. Once such an outfit is assembled, whether it is inexpensive or pretentious, it assures that nothing will be overlooked, from salt shaker to paper napkins.

If Dad is an enthusiastic picnicker, why not give him a steak grill, a generous thermos jug, or a stocked hamper for his Father's Day remembrance, June 19. If he prefers fishing trips, give him a sturdy outfit that will not be too elaborate for such use.

Each year sees new conveniences added to the supplies which await the eager picnicker. Two inexpensive products may be noted, which save time and add to the neat appearance of the lunch. Mothers doubtless have discovered them ere this for packing school lunches.

Greatest boon of all are the wax paper bags for sandwiches, cookies or little cakes, which eliminate wrapping and also assure individual servings. These bags now come in assorted sizes and are amazingly inexpensive. They also make convenient sanitary coverings for left-overs in the refrigerator.

Those oil silk bags, so handy for storing greens in the ice box, should be used to carry washed, crisp leaves of lettuce or watercress on the picnic, for lettuce becomes wilted, unsightly and loses its valuable properties when it is put into sandwiches that must stand several hours. If the lettuce is damp, it also may ruin the sandwiches, so carry it in an oil silk bag, or a damp towel.

The practice of carrying a small carton of whole tomatoes also is popular, for the majority of persons like to eat them raw with salt, and they supply moisture for the picnic meal.

As for the second special convenience, it is the frilled paper holders which fit into muffin tins. Many cooks use them steadily, since they practically eliminate washing the baking pan, however for the picnic, they prevent crumbling and make the individual servings much neater. Instead of baking a loaf cake, bake your favorite recipe in individual servings, in these paper containers, which may be found in the ten cent store, Raisin, date or nut muffins, as well as cakes may be prepared for the lunch in this way.

Oven dishes are growing in popularity for picnics and men who formerly balked at outings join the party without urging now, merely because they can be sure of at least one substantial warm dish, rather than an all-cold menu. If someone in your own family is cool about picnics, just figure out how to make the lunch hot for the obolator.

Don't despair because you have no large thermos arrangement for transporting casseroles or containers of hot foods. Both aluminum and layers of newspaper are splendid conductors of heat. Perhaps you have a deep aluminum utensil in which hot scalloped potatoes, or baked beans, or even a roast of chicken can be prepared.

When the procession is ready to set forth, cover the utensil tightly, wrap in several layers of newspaper, and if possible wedge in a large aluminum container. The oven dishes will stay hot for an hour and a half or longer, with the insulating layers of paper to keep the heat in. If the outing party is to leave in the morning, prepare the dishes ready for quick baking the day before.

Meat loaf makes a filling sandwich and also may be prepared in advance, so that it can be sliced thinly. A picnic can get under way swiftly with a meat loaf, cream cheese, olives and tomatoes on hand. It is a wise idea to add a stock of picnic necessities to the emergency shelf during the Summer months, not forgetting small packages of assorted cookies, unless you prefer to keep a roll of ice-box cookies in the icebox.

Cream cheese and jelly sandwiches are popular for the second course at the picnic and many like the combination of chopped nuts, pickle or olives with the cheese. A small portion of left-over cooked meat may be "stretched" for picnic use by grinding it and adding chopped, hard-cooked egg, pickle, mayonnaise or ketchup, or a bit of onion.

Butter will spread more easily if it is worked in a bowl with a fork, or the back of a spoon, until it is creamy. Regardless of your choice for a picnic lunch, make it simple!

The Great Game of Politics

American Labor party is to be delivered by one of the brilliant young Brain Trusters who has been lunching with Sidney Hillman and David Dubinsky. The campaign is to be financed by the "Schwartz brothers"—Morton and Charlie—with whom Mr. Hopkins consorted at the Saratoga race track last August, and Herbert Bayard Swope, with whom he once played poker.

THERE is enthusiasm in the left-wing White House group over this Hopkins idea. It is, in fact, considered a real inspiration. Not only would it solve the New York situation, but it would—so it is said—provide the New Deal with a standard bearer in 1940 who could be depended upon to "carry forward the Roosevelt policies." That is the way those from whom the idea sprouted feel about it. They not only have worked out in their minds details, such as having Mr. James Keenan, Assistant Attorney General, supersede Mr. Farley as the President's real political adviser, but they have given the scheme newspaper publicity, using the same instruments which publicized the great Jackson boom.

WAS there ever such nonsense? Could there be a better yardstick with which to measure the caliber and competency of these White House advisers? Could there be a more concrete demonstration of their utter impracticability and inexperience? Aside from the fact that there isn't a soul in the great State of New York who wants Mr. Hopkins for Governor, and the further fact that he has not lived in the State for years and is in no way identified with it, there are so many other reasons the scheme is cockeyed that there isn't space to present them all. One is that even if it is found—and there is doubt about it—that Mr. Hopkins is a registered voter in New York, still he is much more of a Socialist than a Democrat. It was not more than two years ago that he clasped the inefable Mr. Upton Sinclair to his bosom, telling the world that "he is one of us."

ANOTHER reason is that Mr. Roosevelt isn't going to compel Mr. Farley—or try to compel him—to accept Mr. Hopkins, and he isn't going to toss him aside, and Mr. Keenan is not, and is not going to become his chief political adviser. Mr. Farley has been chairman of the national committee for six years and chairman of the State committee for ten. The Democratic organizations in New York and in other States too, are Farley organizations so far as they are any-one. The Democrats who run politics in New York and in the other States know him and no one else. The President needs Mr. Farley politically more than Mr. Farley needs him, and they both know it. There has not been any break between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley, and there will be none.

SO FAR as Mr. Hopkins is concerned, though Mr. Farley is his personal friend, he takes no more stock in his candidacy than he did in Mr. Jackson's. He thinks it is a joke, and that the people behind it are doing a distinct disservice to Mr. Hopkins. The unfortunate experience of Mr. Jackson, who was promoted by the same element, ought to mean something to Mr. Hopkins, though you never can tell, and certain of his recent remarks seem to show a strange lack of judgment. In any event, the launching of the Hopkins boom has not stirred a ripple in the State. The situation there may change, of course, but it can be summed up at the moment by saying that if Governor Lehman wants to run again he will be re-nominated, but if he does not want it, then the chances are that Senator Robert Wagner will be "drafted."

"I can't get over it. I have cried so much that I can't sleep. I have this little fellow to think of."

Mrs. Gudenberg said when they were in Germany that they spent their time with her husband's parents, both of whom are still living. "They are fine people," she said.

"No government men have been here to see me," she said.

Mrs. Gudenberg stated that she had no knowledge of the affair in which it is alleged her husband was involved until Sunday morning when she first learned of it. "I went down town Saturday night, knowing nothing of it."

An official of Hall-Aluminum Company stated today that Gudenberg had been employed by the firm for about 2½ or three years, in the capacity of a sheet metal worker. At the time of the probe Gudenberg was on a leave of absence.

non-Americans may arise against our government.

Right now in Spain and China, about one-fourth of the world's population is engaged in war. The shadow of Mars is lengthening and no one knows which country it will cover next. We must watch the building of other powers. We cannot wait until the outbreak of trouble. Armies and navies cannot be built overnight—they must be in constant readiness. We learned that lesson in the World War.

The political conditions at this moment are far more threatening than at any time since 1918. Mexico's recent trouble with America about the oil industry may cause an uprising against our country.

The sinking of the Panay may lead our country to plan a good defense because all further trouble must be averted.

The major conflict in China has resulted in many grave incidents involving the sovereign rights of the United States. We must be able to protect the people of the United States and property. Our ships go to every port in the world. The exploit of John Paul Jones on the Bon Homme Richard that was attacked on foreign waters shows us that we must be ready to stand by our ships. The United States cannot isolate itself from the outside world. If the United States is to take part in world affairs it should be prepared for anything that can happen.

If we want to trade with the world, to protect our interest in the world, if we want to make very sure that non-democratic powers do not extend their influence to this part of the world, if we believe that eventually our own system of government depends somewhat on the survival of democracy in Britain and France, if we believe that no matter what we do

In the United States in the Twentieth Century, we cannot take an exit from the rest of the world any more than we did in the days of George Washington then we need a very good defense.
